Sheep Mountain avalanche from few days ago

Date
Tue, 03/05/2024 - 17:20
Activity
Snowmobiling

While riding north of Cooke City today we observed a large debris pile southern end of Sheep Mountain. SE facing at ~9700'. With poor visibility, I couldn't see a crown but much of the path had been filled in by wind and the debris was covered with fresh snow, making it at least a few days old. This slope was remotely triggered earlier this year in January by riders from the bottom of the slope.

Region
Cooke City
Location (from list)
Sheep Mountain
Observer Name
Zach Peterson