

This slide was remotely triggered and propagated over 200 meters wide. The slope is northeast facing around 9,000 ft. This event is a clear indication weak snow at the ground is struggling to support the new load. Shady, upper elevation slopes are the most likely to hold weak snow. Photo GNFAAC

Advisory Region
Northern Madison

Forecast link: GNFAAC Avalanche Advisory for Tue Dec 4, 2012GNFAAC Avalanche Advisory for Wed Dec 5, 2012GNFAAC Avalanche Advisory for Thu Dec 6, 2012GNFAAC Avalanche Forecast for Fri Dec 7, 2012
Northern Madison, 2012-12-03